

Burned:

May 2, 1896 Buffalo County Sun

C. A. Jackson, engaged in washing his gloves on his hands with gasoline, (today we would use cleaning fluid) was enjoying a smoke with his pipe at the same time.

In attempting to light his pipe the gasoline on one of the gloves caught fire.

He attempted to put out the flames with the other hand and both were ablaze.

Before he could get the gloves removed both hands were so badly burned that the skin slipped off with the gloves.

Dr. Bastin was called to treat him. He will not lose either of his hands.
